Equipoise of temper, kindness, patience, forbearance, are extolled by most of the radiant pens of inspiration, but my text contains that which at first sight is startling. A certain kind of sympathy than you feel for any other manded to indulge in it. The most of us have no need to cultivate high temper, and how often we say things and things under affronted impulse and found warmth and shelter, but which we are sorry for when perhaps it is too late to make effective apology! Why, then, should the apostle Paul dip his pen in the ink horn and trace upon parchment, afterward to be printed up on paper for all ages, the injunction, "Be ye angry and sin not?"

My text commends a wholesome in dignation. It discriminates between the when it is sacrificed we are vehement offense and the offender, the sin and in denunciation. There is another evil the abborrence of which you are all called to, and it is on the increase—the gambling practice. Recent developments show that much of this devastation is being wrought in ladies' parlors. It is an evil which sometimes is as polite and gracious as it is harmful. Indeed there lever were so many people trying to set money without earning it. But it is a haggard transgression that comes down to us from the past, blighting all its way. I have seen in the archives of the na tion in this national capital a large book in which one of the early presidents of the United States kept an necount in his own handwriting of gains and losses at playing cards, on one page the gatus and on the other the es, and there are many pages. In other days many of national reputation went from the halls of congress and the sonate chamber to spend the night in notorious gambling saloons.

STORY OF A CALF'S TAIL.

A Tip That Was Given on a Decision by Justice Harlan. A good story is told of the clever manner in which Justice Harlan manapplauds a wholesome ludiguation, it aged to give a tip on the insular dewarns against sinful anger. And there cision to his golf friend, Solicitor Genthe court met on the day the decisions were handed down Justice Harlan walked into Mr. Richards' office at the department of justice. He said he was on his way to the court. "Some important business today?" remarked the solicitor general.

"Say," replied the big justice, "did you ever hear the story of the calf and Mr. Richards confessed he had never heard it, but would be pleased to listen.

SLAVES CHEAP IN CHINA.

of Human Beings Held In Bondage There. There are at a low estimate 10,000,-000 human beings who are in servitude in the Celestial Kingdom. China has 80,000,000 families, and this makes one slave to every eight families. The average is greater in south China, where nearly every one owns slaves. There is scarcely a Chinese family of means n Nankin, Canton, Macao or Amoy but possesses one or more slave girls. Slave boys are less common, but the girls are found in every street and in almost every house. Girls fetch from $10 to $100 and upward in south China. They are sold at any age from 3 to 15 and most commonly at 7 or 8. The prettiest girls are the most desirable, as in case of marriage or sale they will bring more to the family which buys them. Most of the slave girls are bought to work about the house. It is cheaper to buy a servant than to hire one, for if you take a girl of 8 you can have her services until she is 15, getting seven years of work for nothing but her board and clothes, and then sell her for perhaps ten times your original price.

Theoretically there are no slaves in Hongkong, as it is British territory, but in reality the city is full of them. They are the maldservants and nurses of the Chinese. Every small footed lady needs slaves to help her about, there are many daughters, it is not unnon to find from 20 to 30 slaves in a single family.

Female slaves are often presents from one man to another, and not infrequently they form a part of the bridal outfit. They are commonly bought as secondary wives and often as teachers.

There are localities in China where the girls are noted for their beauty. The cities of Yang-Chau and Su-Chau are as famous for rearing handsome girls as is Georgia, in the Caucasus, where rich Turks so often obtain their wives. There are persons in these citles who make a business of raising slave girls.

They search the country about for promising young girls and put them through a regular course of training They have farms where the slaves are plishments which, added to beauty, will cause them to sell for high prices to rich mandarins. These girls are chiefly the daughters of poor people or the daughters of slaves.

It is common for a man to purchase his wife. Indeed, there are more wives acquired in this way than in any other. many wives as he can maintain, and a secondary wife is cheaper than a bired servant.
